The Attorney, not being prepared for this sort of information from his enterprising opponent, did not presume to enter upon a discussion of the figures above quoted. Like Colonel Ben, he preferred to wander off to Louisiana and South Carolina, and talk about matters in those States, rather than discuss the condition of aflairs in the State of West Virginia.

Meeting in Hancock.

We have elsewhere alluded to the prospects in this "old reliable" Republican county. We understand that Mr. John A. CAMPBELL, the Republican nominee for the House of Delegates, is making some telling points in his speeches in the canvass by way of exposing the features of our present State government. Among other things, he is presenting some of the telling facts set forth by Capt. Dovenen at the meeting in Liberty township yesterday. A gentleman who heard him at New Cumberland on Wednesday says that he is telling these plain truths in a plain way to the people of Hancock. The voters of that good county naturally open their eyes with astonishment when told that the clerks of committees to the West Virginia Senate, and the pages, cost as Martin's Ferry School District $1 74; much as the per diem of one half the in Pease township (outside of these cormembers of the body. They cannot understand why it is that twenty-four Senators should want such a remarkable $1 23; in Bellaire corporation $2 45; in equipment as that. While they are of course aware that the Bourbon idea of a Senate is that of an aristocratic and expensive body, yet they had no idea that it was so regal as to require such an establishment as that. But this piece of extravagance only shows, as General Gory contends, that it is high time for the people of West Virginia to be giving their close attention to the record of the men who are so ready to howl about National affairs and yet so averse to discussing State matters.

He faltered, and what is more descrited the position where he should have boldly represented the wishes of his constituents by casting his vote against the nefarious doctrines of accession."
